Native Resource Hub

The Native Resource Hub exists as a central resource point for those affiliated with the Native American and Alaska Native Communities. We are available statewide to assist in a variety of ways, giving special attention to culture and community connection. For more information visit www.voaww.org/tribalservices

Native & Strong Lifeline

PRESS 4

The Native and Strong Lifeline is a suicide, crisis, and help line specifically for American Indian and Alaska Natives. The Native and Strong Lifeline is fully staffed and operated by other Native people. This means that when you call the Native and Strong Lifeline, a Tribal Crisis Counselor will take your call.

Traditional healing services are provided by North Sound Tribes. For a full list of tribes and contact information visit nsbhaso.org/tribal-resources.

Persons who need help from an interpreter or need to have information translated into their own language can get help free of charge by calling 1-800-684-3555.
